

Who are we?

We are folks coming from diverse educational and cultural background who came together to form a societal group. We are lucky to currently have engineers, actor, writer, techie and lawyer in our team. We were privileged enough to have a childhood where we needed not to worry about how we will reach to school. However, soon the realization struck that there are children in our own small city who have to cross barriers of hunger, malaise and labour before they can even have a look at school. Education is still far-sighted to them. We are devoted to transform the lives of children who come from inferior strata of our society and could not have access to free education owing to the social issues they are bounded by since birth.

What we aim for?

Aiming to make education easily accessible for every child, we pitched the idea to start regular classes close to the homes of children who cannot reach to school, owing to the reasons beyond their control and choices. Our mission is to provide underprivileged children with the opportunity to kindle the passion for knowledge within themselves and to help them have a better perspective towards the society. Currently the classes take place at two locations and we are aiming to progressively engage more and more children into education through our project.

What is Nukkad Pathshala?

The NGO – Art Point Sanskritik Shiksha Samiti has collaborated with our team allowing us to organize the daily classes for children under the project of Nukkad Pathshala by Art Point. Under the project we have taken the initiative to provide free-of-cost education to underprivileged children. Here, we are committed to facilitate children with ample opportunities to develop mentally, physically, socially and emotionally.

How do we work?

Our foremost focus is on the academic growth and understanding. Regular classes are being conducted. Notebooks, text-books, stationary and other necessary facilities are being made available to our students free of cost which they otherwise could not afford to possess. Subjects like English, Mathematics and Science are being taught to develop and improve general understanding of the topics among students by presenting them with real life examples. This helps them to develop an educational perspective of their surroundings and make them curious to learn more. We motivate students to maintain personal as well as surroundings hygiene, introduce them with social etiquettes. Workshops are organized every Saturday to let students engage their creative minds and to let explore their own intellectual depth.

How can you support us?

If you have extra study material which are still in good condition, we will be happy to help you redistribute them.

We do not have a revenue-based model. So, we need consistent donations to keep our pace. You can send donations on the account details provided below. Your generous donations will go towards arranging stationary, educational material, resources like durries/mat to sit on, a healthy snack.
